Expectations high as the Currys land

By Jaku Anderson

HOPE for better times and outright day-dreams sum the mood up at Children of Zion Village as the new Directors arrive.

Kado Mushavanga, an outspoken political and social analyst, said that she loves the idea of Lona and Travis coming to Children of Zion.

She said she is going to welcome them warmly with hugs.

She also said she expects them to do a lot of things for the children.

Another student who prefers not to have his name mentioned said he wants the Directors to play sports with children everyday.

He also said he expects them to personally organize matches with other schools during weekends.

As for Luka, he wants to phone his father everyday.

"They will let me phone", he confidently told Zion Chronicle.

One of the older students said that she expects them to change some rules and give them more freedom.

"I hope that they will do things the way they are supposed to be done", she said.

She hopes they will come and stay safely.

The wildest expectations surprisingly came from unexpected quarters.

"... thirty computers, two more labs, lab equipment, a library, IT Centre,...", dreamt the School Principal before this reporter could bring him back to mother earth.

Uncle Leonard, the Maintenance and Grounds Manager said that he is happy they are coming.

"I am pleased they are finally here", he declared, "I expect all children to respect them".

The wizened elder looks forward to sharing ideas with the Currys.

Staff members approached chose to reserve their comments.

WE are the forth estate and as we launch this debut installment of The Zion Chronicle, we make our role and guiding principles crystal clear.

Our investigative cameras shall sneak into all the areas that affect life at Children of Zion and the futures of all members of our community twenty-four seven.

Our nosy and prying team of scribes shall celebrate virtue and expose vice no matter how hidden.

Our society and entertainment pages shall take your amusement to hitherto unknown heights.

We state it plainly that as the forth estate, we uphold the profession's values of balanced and ethical journalism without fear or favour.

We definitely were not given the spirit of fear.

Lest we remain in the cold -we dream too- what about a state of the art printing press Uncle Travis?

Not wild or is it?
You have seen nothing yet!
